

Most Popular

NFTs are taking over and selling for millions—here's how to make and sell one

PAID CONTENT
The AI dossier
FROM DELOITTE

TikTok plans to open 1,000 virtual restaurants by the end of 2022

Why Moorea should be your top destination in French Polynesia

FINANCE • STOCK MARKET

Even when the Fed starts hiking rates, stocks could keep rising for 10 months, according to Deutsche Bank

BY ANNE SRADERS

December 14, 2021 12:31 PM CST

...

STOCK MYSTERY.

Analysts at Deutsche Bank identified 13 separate hiking cycles since 1955, which lasted an average of under two years. And according to their research, which examined the average price performance of the S&P 500 on a daily basis, "there tends to be solid growth in the first year of the hiking cycle, with an average return of +7.7% after 365 days," the analysts at Deutsche Bank wrote in a Monday report.