Hide ^

- The US stock market is expected to rally in 2026 for a fourth straight year, with the average year-end S&P 500 forecast implying another gain.
- Not a single one of the 21 prognosticators surveyed is predicting a decline, with some strategists finding the lack of dissent a little concerning.
- Strategists are optimistic due to resilient growth, cooling inflation, and solid corporate earnings, but some are cautioning about potential macro risks and lofty valuations.
