

What the Iran War Really Means for the Stock Market

The campaign in the Middle East could have far-reaching financial effects. Investing moves to consider.

By Jack Hough Follow

Updated March 06, 2026 9:56 am EST / Original March 06, 2026 12:30 am EST

...

But everyone should pay attention to the cost. U.S. debt this year will hit $33 trillion, or more than $250,000 per household. Last month, the Congressional Budget Office predicted that the deficit—the amount by which the country is going further into the hole—will total $1.9 trillion this year, or nearly $15,000 per household.